Forecast For The United Kingdom
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 0400 on Saturday 31 Jul 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Some sunshine but also showers, some thundery parts of England.

Today:
Some sunshine but also showers becoming more widespread, these most frequent and heavy over eastern, central and southern England where some thunderstorms are expected this afternoon. The best of any dry and bright weather expected in the north and west.

Tonight:
Evening showers tending to die out with just a few continuing mainly in the northeast and southwest of the United Kingdom. Elsewhere largely dry and fine. Cool in the north.

Sunday:
Many places remaining dry with some sunshine. However some showers are expected especially in the south and southeast of England where some will be thundery. Feeling a little warmer.

Outlook for Monday to Wednesday:
Sunny spells and showers Monday and Tuesday across England and Wales, mostly fine and dry elsewhere albeit with chilly mornings. Risk of heavy showers in many places on Wednesday.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.